In sending out our unpretending volume we can hardly expect that it will run the ordeal of criticism without numerous errors being discovered. We have, however, done the best we could. We have found it no easy task to compile a list of all the taxable inhabitants of the county in the one hundredth year of our history as a Nation, and much of the other matter found in the work has been almost as difficult to obtain. We have faith, however, that our effort has not been a barren one, and that we have succeeded in eliminating from the musty past many facts that will prove of use and interest to our readers.

In regard to the post-office address of the inhabitants of the several townships, we have selected the most prominent or central one, believing that mail matter sent to that office would eventually reach the person addressed, in whatever part of the township he resided. The list of taxables were copied from the books of the assessors of the various townships and boroughs, and their occupations appended as given by these officers.

History of Beaver County.

By James Patterson, Beaver Falls.

Beaver County was erected March 12th, 1800. It was formed out of parts of Allegheny and Washington counties. Jonathan Coulter, Joseph Hemphill and Denny McClure were named as Commissioners for the erection of public buildings. Beaver Town was named in the act as the county seat. The county was organized for judicial purposes April 2d, 1803. The first court was held February 6th, 1804, at the house of Abner Lacock, on the lot on which John Clark for many years kept a hotel. David Johnson was the first Prothonotary, and was the first teacher in Cannonsburg Academy, July, 1791. William Henry was the first Sheriff. Judge Jesse Moore was succeeded by Solomon Roberts, and he by William Wilkins; then came Charles Shaler, followed by John Bredin, then Daniel Agnew, etc., etc. At the first Term, 1804, the following named Attorneys were admitted to practice in Beaver county, viz: Alexander Addison, Thomas Collins, Steel Sample, A. W. Foster, John Bannister Gibson, Sample S. King, Obediah Jennings, William Wilkins, Henry Haslet, James Allison, John Simonson, David Reddick, Parker Campbell, David Hays, C. S. Sample, Henry Baldwin, Thomas G. Johnston, Isaac Kerr, James Mountain, Robert Moore, William Ayres, William Larwell. Many of these became afterward distinguished men in the State and nation, holding high and responsible positions. Judge Moore’s circuit included five counties, ending at Erie, and holding court five weeks in the year. Abner Lacock, John H. Reddick and Joseph Caldwell were the first Associates, and sat with Judge Moore.

Of these gentlemen named above, and who at that time lived in the town, and afterwards distinguished themselves in the positions they afterwards attained, and the part they had in shaping and moulding the character of the county, may be particularly mentioned a few, and first Abner Lacock, who from Associate Judge and first Justice of the Peace, was elected the first Representative to the Legislature, in 1801, and was again elected to the same post, and served four consecutive sessions, to 1808, when he was elected to the Senate from Allegheny, Beaver and Butler counties, and in that body was a leading and active member. In 1810 he was nominated for Congress as the war, (with England) candidate, and was triumphantly elected. So honorably did he acquit himself in the House that in the spring of 1813 the Legislature of Pennsylvania, with great unanimity, elected him a Senator of the United States, which, he filled with credit and ability for six years. He afterwards served as an Inspector of the Land Office, was one of the first Pennsylvania Canal Commissioners, acting in that capacity several years without fee or reward, and did very much to shape the progress of that work and to insure its passing by way of the Beaver river.

The county is bounded on the north by Mercer county, on the east by Butler, on the south-east by Allegheny, on the south by Washington, and on the west by the States of Ohio and Virginia. The Ohio river flows through the southern portion of the county, which it enters 14 miles below Pittsburg, and runs in a northern course for about 12 miles, where the Beaver river falls into it, and then turns south-west, and crosses the county by that course 15 miles, receiving the Big Sewickley above the mouth of the Beaver river, and the Raccoon creek below it.

The Mahoning river and Shenango, uniting in Lawrence county, form the Beaver river, and with the Slippery Rock and Connoquenessing creeks, which flow into it near to the dividing line from Lawrence county, and flows southward through nearly the middle of the county, and empties into the Ohio at Rochester, and near the Borough of Beaver. Within the first five miles from its mouth there is a natural fall and rapids, in quick succession, of sixty-five feet in the aggregate, which natural fall, with a dam erected at the head, (making a pool or "slack water," reaching back some seven miles to the mouth of the Connoquenessing creek) make the whole fall of water for manufacturing uses 80 to 85 feet. Besides these rivers and creeks there are many important creeks in this county, and form collectively an almost incalculable amount of water-power for factories, workshops, etc.
The population of the county, when formed in 1800, was, as per the census of that year, 5,776, almost all of which was found to be on the south side of the Ohio, and engaged in agriculture.

The length of the county north and south 26½ miles; width east and west, 18½ miles; area in acres 298,240; square miles 446.

Beaver county belongs to the secondary geological formation. Valuable and extensive beds of bituminous coals, with strata of limestone, occur in almost every part of the county. Near Darlington is a bed of Cannel Coal, eight or ten feet thick, and greater, under which is a foot or more of good common bituminous coal. This Cannel coal is also found in other parts of the county, and near to the Beaver and Ohio rivers. This Cannel coal is light, compact, ignites easily and quickly, and burns with a strong blaze. Much of it is sent, during the navigation of Lake Erie, to New York City for the making of gas.

Coal No. 4, known as the Cannel Coal vein, can be almost always found when sought for at the proper horizon; but with few exceptions is thin and of no value, or but little. In the valley of the Little Beaver River it lies near the grade of the railroad, and near Cannelton there is a “pocket” varying in thickness from three to twenty-two feet of Cannel, underlaid with one foot of Bituminous of such purity that it is hauled by wagons for use by blacksmiths for twenty miles around. The quality of the Cannel is such as to compete with the English and Peylonia Cannels, and for its cheerfulness and cleanliness has become the favorite household fuel of New York city. The sales in that city alone will aggregate ten thousand tons annually during the past twenty years.

The Cannel Coal was first discovered here in 1832, and was commonly known as Slate Coal, and a mine opened. The selling price was so low for a number of years as to supply the place of wood, having twice the heating power of wood, and igniting as easily.

About the year 1850 a railroad was built from the mine to the Pittsburgh Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad, and during the past twenty-five years the mine has been kept steadily at work. During the forty-three years of operation over one hundred acres have been mined out, and still the supply seems to be inexhaustible. The coal is underlaid with a “mother” shale, which is literally full of fossil remains, fishes and molusks. Suits of beautifully preserved fossils from this mine form the pride of many cabinets in Europe as well as in our own country. Iron ore of various kinds has been and is to be found in many parts of the county.

That part of the county which lies on the South-side of the Ohio river is somewhat hilly, but generally more of a rolling character, much cut with streams of water, and relieved by many fine valleys of good, rich bottom lands, and altogether well suited for sheep husbandry and the cultivation of wheat and other cereal grains. That part being on the North-side of the Ohio is of a rolling, gently undulating surface—excepting at points immediately upon the banks of the rivers—and the soil is well adapted to every variety of farming and stock raising.

The county has been justly distinguished since the year 1830 for the quantity and quality of its wool, bituminous coals of excellent quality, cannel coal, limestone in inexhaustable quantities, fire clay, suitable for making fire brick for furnaces, etc. Superior free sandstone for building purposes are to be found in many localities in great abundance, and at the most advantageous points for economical use and for transportation abroad. There are few places to be found anywhere where so many and great advantages are offered for manufacturers as are possessed by Beaver county. Among these may be named that which first attracts the attention of strangers, viz: the greatness of the water power, particularly of the Beaver river, and the great ease with which it can be made available for manufacturing and mechanical purposes; and its other advantages for the economical manufacture and transportation of raw material and various articles of manufacture. The Ohio river affords one of the cheapest modes of transportation to and from the largest extent of country and population than by any other river or mode of conveyance of raw or manufactured goods. Railroads running to all points of the compass afford great facilities for speedy travel and transportation, the advantages of which to manufacturers are steadily on the increase.

It is only lately, and since the close of the late war, that the great advantages of this county for economical manufacturing have been generally or widely appreciated by manufacturers or capitalists. This was owing to several causes, a few of the most prominent and influential of these may be stated. In the first place danger from the Indians prevented settlers and enterprising people from venturing into the territory west of the Ohio until after 1796, and comparatively few, even of those who had previously bought from the State and paid for tracts of land, dared venture to make improvements for some years after that time, and those who first entered were mostly farmers. Another cause was that until after the year 1830, and the completion of the Pennsylvania Public Improvements from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, the great travel and transportation of merchandise, etc., between the great cities of the east and the country west of the Alleghenies were by way of the New York canals to the Lakes, or south by way of Baltimore and the National Turnpike to Wheeling, Virginia, and partly over the Pennsylvania turnpike roads from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, and from the latter place down the Ohio by steamboats, and all these missed any sight of Beaver county's natural beauties and advantages. The price of passage in a stage coach from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh for some time before and after 1830, was $18 to $20 and $22; and freight charges by Conestoga wagons were from three to five cents per pound, and the time occupied in travel between the two cities in the fastest stage line was from three and a half to four days and nights; and even until the railroads from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh were in operation, or until telegraphic lines were established, an answer to a letter sent from Beaver post office could not be received at that office in less than eight to ten days, and even after the completion of the public works and until about the close of our last war, the close proximity of Beaver to Pittsburgh, instead of working to promote the growth of Beaver county operated to its disadvantage in various ways. The Pittsburghers labored to impress upon strangers from the east and elsewhere, who were looking and enquiring for sites to engage in the erection of works, factories, etc., that coal in Pittsburgh was so cheap, and an engine of sufficient power for their purposes would cost so little, and could be got upon such terms there, and which could all be paid out of their daily profits, and had so many hard things to urge against water power generally, and there particularly, that the seekers were deterred from locating in Beaver county.

Another fact, as argued, which operated against establishing works, factories, etc., in Beaver, was that Beaver county had no banking facilities, whereas Pittsburgh had a great abundance of banking and exchange facilities; that while a business man or manufacturer, wishing to get his bills of exchange cashed would be required, under the rules, if living out of the county—city—to furnish two acceptable city endorsers, or to go to a broker and pay him according as he could make terms.

Before the Pennsylvania Public Improvements were completed the market for flour, grain and manufactured goods of all kinds was the home market, and the Ohio river and western waters, up to the year 1830. The war of 1812, with Great Britain, caused a check upon the growth and prosperity of the county in population and business. Many of the citizens entered the army and went to the frontiers, and generally supporting the government most zealously.

The law of April, 1792, opened up the "Territory North and West of the Ohio," etc., to occupancy, which was previously an uninhabited wilderness, and had been in the possession of the Indians, until after General Wayne's treaty of Greenville in 1795, and for a year or more thereafter, considered to be unsafe for families to settle in. Under this law of 1792 great troubles arose, and great litigation and almost never ending law suits grew out of difficulties between those claiming "titles under purchase from the State," and those claiming under "settlement and improvement. This retarded the growth and improvement of Beaver more than fifty years. One case may be named as proof of this:

General Daniel Brodhead, an officer in service under General Washington, when in command at Fort Pitt became well acquainted with the "Falls of Beaver and the Black Walnut Bottom on the West side of Beaver River." Aware of the great value of the site for manufacturing purposes, when the law of 1792 was passed, he, on the day of its passage, made purchase of warrants for two tracts of 400 acres each, covering the Black Walnut Bottom and the "middle falls of Beaver." In August, 1801, he sold these two tracts of land to David Hoopes, of Chester county, for three thousand dollars, receiving one hundred dollars on account, binding himself to make good title and give possession at a fixed time. David Hoopes, with a company of friends, went out to the land the same year to take possession and to begin building mills, etc., and found the land in the possession of settlers, claiming the land under "settlement and improvement." He was obliged to buy fifty acres, embracing some of the bottom land and water power, and the next year began making improvements. An iron blast furnace was built, also a grist mill, saw mill, etc., and in 1806 a town plot was made, lots sold, and under various firms, Hoopes, Townsend & Co., J. Wilson & Co., Barker Greege & Co., and O. Ormsby, until the year 1818 a large business was done in the Brighton "Estate," when owing to the general financial depression the furnaces could not be worked with profit, and the mills, furnace, forge, etc., were permitted to become dilapidated and ruinous. Previous to this time the Harmony Society then located in Butler county, would have purchased the place—these two tracts of land and the improvements thereon for $32,000, but for the disputes about the title of a large part thereof. Had it not been for this defect in title this numerous and influential Society would have taken and improved it instead of removing to the State of Indiana, which they did shortly afterwards. General Broadhead instituted suit in the United States Court of Equity, in Philadelphia, and obtaining a judgment in his favor dispossessed the original settlers, some of them leasing part of the land from him and others leaving the place altogether.

The population of the county in 1810 was 12,186, which had increased at the census of 1820 to 15,340. The most important event during the decade thereafter, causing the increases of population, business, etc., was the coming into the county of the Harmony Society from Harmony, Indiana, in the year 1825, and locating upon a large tract of land on the Ohio river, possessing one of the most beautiful, of the very many sites, for a town or city, upon which they laid out the town of Economy, and erected factories, mills, workshops, etc., etc. The Society added largely to the population and made a market for many agricultural products, wool, etc. Their industry and economy in gardening and fruit culture had a most inspiring and stimulating influence, constantly growing to the present time.

The population had increased by the census of 1830 to 24,183. The influence of a protective tariff and the United States Bank, which had done so much for Eastern Pennsylvania, had for good reached even west and north of the Ohio river to Beaver county. James Patterson, a citizen of Philadelphia, on a visit to Pittsburgh and the west, was, by an accident induced to visit Beaver county in the spring of 1829, and falling in love with the water power, etc., at Brighton, on the Beaver river, purchased the estate embracing about 1300 acres. The iron works were in a state of ruin and decay. He removed his family, machinery, etc., the same year, and began some improvements of the property. He erected a flour mill, in which during a number of years he did a thriving business in purchasing wheat in the country around, making extra family flour for Philadelphia markets. During the working of the Pennsylvania public improvements large quantities were sent to the east. He also built a cotton factory, spinning coarse yarns for a market, and much of which he had made by local weavers into plaids, checks, etc., and giving employ to many work people, spreading much money through the country as had never been done before. At this time, and until the good effects of the working of the canals, etc., after completion, were felt, the price of wheat at the Falls was forty to fifty cents per bushel. Fifty cents a day for a laboring man or a country carpenter; very good coal, delivered for four and one-half to five cents per bushel; the price paid the digger one and five-eighths cents per bushel. The purchase and cash price paid to Mr. Oliver Ormsby, of (near) Pittsburgh, Allegheny county, made quite an impression, and was the cause of much real estate in the county changing hands, and many improvements of importance being made. The progress and completion in the county of the State canal to New Castle made a strong impression for good upon the spirits of the people, and upon values generally.

The people of the county received with great approval the public school law, and put it in force by building school houses, etc., early after its passage, and it has grown with the people since until now it is a great power for good.

The chartering by the State of Pennsylvania of the "United States Bank," and the establishing a branch thereof in New Brighton, had a very great influence at the time, and for a few years thereafter in stimulating and promoting real business and improvements, as also of all manner of wild speculations. Manufacturers and owners of real estate were induced not only to enlarge their factories, workshops, etc., but to build new ones, and to embark in new and large business operations requiring much money, which they were led to believe they could obtain abundantly from their branch bank. Everything went on swimmingly till the mother bank in Philadelphia failed and assigned the indebtedness due to the branch in New Brighton to Philadelphia bank "Trustees," when great distress and ruin fell upon many of the people and the business of the county; and values of real estate and other property were prostrate and almost entirely without a price in market. The effects of the so-called panic of 1873 are not to be compared with the consequences of this failure of the United States Bank in Beaver county.

Under the labor, influence and cost of a citizen of the county a very large amount of these debts due in Beaver county, approximating $200,000, were compromised and paid by the assignments of cash, real estate, bonds, stocks, etc., to the very great benefit of debtor and creditor. By these compromises most of the manufacturers were enabled, at least in a small way, to resume business, and gradually but slowly confidence and business revived again.

The population of the county, as per census of 1840, had grown to be 29,368. During the time from 1840 to 1850 the county interests continued to labor under the bad influences of the failure of the bank referred to, and the general depression of business and losses incurred by some of the business men by the great fire of 1845 in Pittsburgh, etc., but business and population gradually improved.

The census of 1850 showed the population to be 26,689. This reduction in the number of inhabitants was caused by the Act of the Legislature, March 20th, 1849, by which a part of Beaver county was taken to form Lawrence county, by which Beaver county lost 9,130 of her citizens. The contract for building the Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad through this county was made April 24th, 1850. The first locomotive passed up Beaver creek as far as Block House run July 30th, 1851. The first "excursion train" came from Pittsburgh October 23d, 1851, and passed beyond the Summit toward Alliance, Ohio.

Under the influence of general prosperity in the east, and under the hopes inspired by the railroad enterprises in and through this county, an eastern company purchased in 1853, through a real estate agent, James Patterson's estate, mills, etc., at Brighton, on the Beaver, and also from Ovid Pinney his large property at Rochester, on the Ohio. Great expectations were formed of the good results to the general interests from this purchase, and the improvements which were expected to follow. But after a very sickly existence under unwise management, and the loss of the cotton factory and the original machinery therein, from fire, by the act of an incendiary, and much damage to the property otherwise, the company utterly failed, and the owner, holding a mortgage for most of the purchase money, had a long and most vexatious suit at law to dispossess them, and was sued for $7,000 damages.
because in the deed of mortgage it was stipulated that one per cent. should be annually paid, over six per cent, to cover State or municipal taxes upon money at interest.

The census of 1860 finds the population to be 29,140. The panic of 1857 had a very bad influence upon business in the county. The great majority of the people sustained the government in the war with great zeal and spirit, promptly furnishing volunteers and recruits for the army as required of them, and as promptly paid all taxes, income, etc. Each borough and township was made a military district, and furnished its quota of men as they were called for, and paid their recruits in cash at the time the bounty agreed upon to each; the county incurring no debt or obligation for this purpose. And owing to this fact the county has for a number of years past been free from debt. There is probably no county in the State which, in proportion to population, put more soldiers in the army than did this county.

An effort was made during two sessions of Congress, in the years 1861-2 and 1862-3 to induce the government to purchase the Brighton estate, with its great water powers, etc., for the erection of a National Armory for making large and small guns, for which a committee of National Engineers appointed by the Government in 1825 that recommended it, after careful examination of many sites in the West,—but which, owing mainly to the opposition of the Pittsburgh Board of Trade, which pressed for its location in Pittsburgh—was unsuccessful; and failing to induce manufacturers or capitalists from abroad to buy and improve the property for their own and the general benefit.

The Harmony Society of Economy undertook the task to induce private manufacturers and others to buy lots, water powers, etc., etc., and in that way do in a retail way what Mr. P. had failed to do by wholesale. The Society accordingly in the year 1866, had made a new survey of the town of Brighton, very much enlarging its boundaries, and appointed H. T. & J. Reeves real estate agents to offer for sale building lots, water lots, houses and lots, etc., at low prices to improvers; and they sold "like hot cakes" under this management, and the town grew in population and business very rapidly, and the people asked to be incorporated into a borough, and were so incorporated in the year 1870; and it is now believed to be the largest manufacturing town in this county, and one of the largest in Western Pennsylvania, outside of Pittsburgh. The population, as per the census of 1870, was 3,112.
The taxables assessed in December, 1875, were 1,104; number of children enrolled January 1st, 1876, was 782. The whole population will not, therefore, be less than 4,500.

The census of 1870 makes the whole population then 37,612, and it is at this time, January 1st, 1876, over 45,000 souls.

The old Pennsylvania Beaver Division of the canal, owned by the Erie Canal Company, which for many years had been doing no good to the company or the people, was sold, and the Harmony Society finally became the owner of the title then sold, of the dams, canal bed and tow path from the lower end of New Brighton up the river to the mouth of the Connoquennessing creek, which makes the water power available for manufacturing uses very much greater at Beaver Falls than ever before. The Erie canal used for passing boats very much of the water, and wasted much more needlessly, and doing little good most of the time. The population increase per cent. from 1850 to 1860 was nine per cent., and from 1860 to 1870 was twenty-five per cent.

Much is said and often repeated of the hardships and sufferings endured by the early pioneers who first settled upon lands upon our frontiers to clean up the lands and make themselves a home and a farm; but their lives and fortunes are most happy and successful when compared with the lives and fortunes of those who first undertook the task of improving the natural advantages, and to build up a business for their own and the country's best welfare in this county. The whole history and experience of those who first began the improvements on the Beaver at Brighton, from Hoopes, Townsend & Co. until Oliver Ormsby became the owner, show nothing but a continual contest with adverse circumstances and obstructions of all sorts, and of troubles and discords and oppositions from their neighbors; and while being Friends were themselves very unfriendly, one with another, and which continued as long as most of the parties lived, and exists with some to this day. A gentleman who was a member of one of the firms owning and operating the works, and the best business man of them all, left Beaver county with so strong a hatred and antipathy to these people and the place that he would not put his foot ashore in Beaver county when he came up to receive a certain sum of money from Mr. Patterson and to deliver an important title paper which he held.

The future prospects of the county are most promising. A railroad, the Pittsburgh, and Erie, has been this winter and fall, 1875, located from Pittsburgh, coming down the Ohio through this county on the South-side, crossing the Ohio at Beaver and running up the Beaver from there through Fallston, Beaver Falls, etc., up to the junction of the Mahoning river, beyond Westward and Northward.

In the not far distant future the valleys on the sides of our rivers will present the routes of iron railways made at low grades, and being made at a cheaper cost than they have been hitherto, will carry freights at all seasons at a rate and under circumstances which shippers will prefer to any thing which could be offered even upon an improved navigation of the Ohio river. This, too, would work greatly to the benefit of Beaver county, where there are so many of the elements required for economical manufacturing. In a short time, too, so much coal as is now sent southward by the Ohio river from Pittsburgh, will not be required there, which will work much in favor of manufacturers in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

was laid out by the State Surveyor and approved and confirmed by the Assembly March 6th, 1793. The site is that upon which General McIntosh built the fort named after him in 1778. General Washington, on an exploring expedition down the Ohio, A. D., 1770, stopped at the mouth of the Beaver, and speaks of the site in his diary as a fine body of land. It is also the site of a so-called French built town as early as 1754. The lots of ground as laid out were sold on the 2d day of July by Commissioners appointed for that purpose, viz.: David Bradford, James Marshall and Andrew Swearingen. The sale began in Washington, Pa., continued from day to day and finished August 12th, 1793, having sold nearly all of the lots.

Among the first purchasers and who afterwards moved to the town, were James Allison, Robert, John and Charles Davidson, Guion Greer, Thomas Henry, David Johnston, Samuel Johnston, Joseph Lawrence and James Lyon. The town was formed into a borough March 29th, 1802, and originally extended east of the Beaver, including much of what is now Rochester and Bridgewater.

Beaver is beautifully situated on a high bench of land, giving a large view of the Ohio on both sides, above and below the town, which is rarely equalled. It is favored with very good and never failing springs of water, and it is generally conveyed through the streets in pipes. The atmosphere is pure and healthy, as the country generally is proved to be, and the population, by the census of 1870, was 1,120. It has recently made rapid increase in numbers and in the value of general improvements. There is no place on the river better suited as a place for a home, churches and schools with quiet and good order prevailing. Prior to 1829 the Presbyterian brick church, now standing, was the only one south of Darlington, and for many miles up and down the river. In this church Rev. A. B. Quay was pastor, and alternated his labors between it and the service of the Colonization Society as their agent, according as his health demanded. He was a scholar and Christian minister of zeal, and rendered great service to church and the society. He died here, worn out in the service, much respected and regretted. The first Methodist church was erected about 1830. The present building is of recent construction. There are also an United Presbyterian and Roman Catholic Churches. The Beaver College and Musical Institute, well known and highly appreciated, of which Hon. Daniel Agnew is President and Dr. R. T. Taylor, Principal, is also located here. At the upper end of town is the Beaver Female Seminary, under the charge of Rev. Thomas Kennedy, and is in a prosperous and promising condition.

We cannot close our sketch of Beaver without alluding briefly to some of the gentlemen who early resided here, and did much to promote the growth and prosperity of the town and county.

James Allison, whose life was spent in Beaver county, in the duties of private life, was a gentleman of remarkable ability as a lawyer. Chief Justice Gibson who knew him well, personally as well as a lawyer, pronounced in the presence of other judges of the court, and of the bar, that "James Allison, of Beaver, was the best case lawyer in Pennsylvania." He was known not only in his own county but in all the western part of the State, at least, to be not only a superior lawyer, faithful to his clients, but as a particularly just and honest man. He was known on more than one occasion to refuse to receive a fee of what was at that time a comparatively large sum, which it was thought he richly deserved, he being of a different opinion. He was elected a member of Congress, and served from 1823 to 1825, was elected again, and declined to serve, so strong were his affections and ties for domestic life. His whole life was most exemplary, and after having served at the bar; as he expressed it, "Ten years more than the Children of 824 BEAVER COUNTY CENTENNIAL DIRECTORY.

Israel were in the Wilderness,” he withdrew therefrom. He died mourned and generally beloved.

Thomas Henry was one of those who lived in the county from the time of its foundation to the day of his death, excepting when a member of Congress in Washington, where he served from 1837 to 1843, most faithfully attending to his duties and serving his constituents. As the editor and proprietor of the newspaper, “The Beaver Argus” which he was from the year 1824 to 1830, he did probably as much public service as any man could have done for the county in legislative halls. He did much in support of his church and all that promoted the public tone and interests, and died respected by all his fellow citizens.

John Bredin was not a citizen of Beaver town, but of Butler county. He presided as judge of the Beaver county court, and was a model officer. Although while on the bench the members of the bar would try to throw dust in his eyes, and differ with him, yet when he was taken hence, his warmest and most able opponents pronounced him to have been an able and faithful judge.

J. Bannister Gibson continued to live in Beaver for some years, but removed to Carlisle, and became in time that most distinguished Chief Judge of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. Henry Baldwin succeeded to a seat upon the bench of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania also, which he was justly worthy of. When speaking of the worthies who were in the county at the time of its organization, General Samuel Power is particularly worthy of mention for the part he took in the progress and welfare of the county. He was a resident of the county from 1796 until his death. He served on the Lake frontier with Thomas Henry, of Beaver, and other of his fellow citizens in the war of 1812. He was elected and served several Terms in the State Legislature, both before and after 1830. He was a member in 1831 when a bill making appropriations for the “Main Line of Public Improvements from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh,” was reported by the committee of the House, in which there was no appropriation named for continuing the works through Beaver county to Lake Erie, in the interest of which there existed much feeling in Beaver, and up the valley of the Beaver, etc. Nearly all, if not every member in favor of this extension, excepting General Power, voted against this bill; he—the General—made a speech in which he said he had voted for and supported every appropriation for the main line from the first, upon principle, and for the same reason would not now vote against the bill, though he believed and felt that his eastern friends had not acted in good faith to him and his Beaver county interests. He voted for the bill, and his voting so public spiritedly made such an impression upon the committee and other members, that a new bill was reported and passed which made an appropriation for the Beaver Extension of the Main Line. The people then felt a very deep interest in the success of this work, and believed it would do great good for the interests of Beaver county, and it did so for many years, and they gave “General Sam Power” all the credit for it. He was Adjutant General of the State Militia, and was remarkably popular in those “training days.” He was an honest, faithful, worthy man, and died much respected, and far from being wealthy.

Robert Moore also continued to live and died in Beaver borough. He served a number of years in the Pennsylvania Legislature, and was a very worthy member.

John Allison, son of James Allison, was born in Beaver and very acceptably served in Congress from Washington and Beaver, and was elected to the session of 1851-53, and was again, after an interval, re-elected and served another term most acceptably; he also served a term in the State Senate from this district.

John Dickey lived in this town some years. He was elected to Congress and served from 1843 to 1845, and was again elected for the session of 1847-49. He also served as Senator in the State Legislature with great ability and distinction, devoting himself most zealously and with great ability and success for what he believed would best serve his State county and people. He was appointed United States Marshal for the Western Pennsylvania District, and died before the expiration of his term, much lamented by all who knew him.

Daniel Agnew, too, has been long a resident of Beaver. He read law with Robert Moore in 1829, and was elected one of the delegates, with John Dickey, in the year 1838, to the convention which framed our late Pennsylvania Constitution, and under which the people lived so long and so well contented with it. Mr. Agnew, it is believed, was the youngest of all the delegates, and is now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
When Judge William Wilkins was President Judge in Beaver many citizens living along the Beaver creek petitioned the Court to abate the dam at Brighton upon the ground that it prevented the fish going up the stream. This was at a time when the dam was the instrument of more employment and more money being brought into the county than almost every other business. The Judge, in his remarks to them, said: "That dam and the Falls of Beaver are the jewels of Beaver county."

BRIDGEWATER BOROUGH

was formerly a part of Beaver. A part was known as Sharon and another small part as Fallston, and lies along the Beaver from Fallston line down to the Ohio river. The population by the census of 1870 was 1,119, and it is estimated by resident citizens to have much increased in numbers since that time. There are three iron foundaries, two saw and one grist mill; two tanneries, and many other minor industries. The first bridge across the Beaver river is at this place, and is a good solid Pennsylvania bridge. Robert Darragh, a very early pioneer in Beaver county, opened a store at this locality. He served one term as State Senator from Beaver and Washington. He died at the advanced age of ninety-five. The Hon. John Dickey lived in the bounds of this borough many years, and died in it. William Davidson, George Hinds and John Boles settled here at an early day. The "Beaver Point," at the Ohio end of the borough, is a beautiful location at the junction of the Ohio and Beaver rivers. It was for many years a great forwarding point for agricultural products down the Ohio river, and the landing and storing of goods from New Orleans upwards, and from Pittsburgh further east. The land at this point was bought early after 1803 by the Harmony Society, upon which they built a warehouse for storing goods received and shipped by the river, and which they sold before their removal from Butler county west. It was used for the same purpose as late, at least, as 1850. Upon the locks of the canal entering the Ohio was built the first steamboat used for carrying passengers, to run from Beaver to Pittsburgh, by John Dickey and others, of a size as they calculated would pass through these locks. It did pass through once, and was found to be too tight a fit, consuming too much time in the transit. She ran for a time below the locks, and it being found that she was too small for that trade, was sold to go down the river, and the steamboats "Beaver," "Fallston," and "New Castle," were quickly built and put in successful operation, landing for a time at that place, and also at Rochester, where large warehouses were erected to accommodate the trade.

FALLSTON.

This town is built on the west bank of the Beaver, on a narrow bottom at the foot of a high bluff or hill, and was as early as 1830 famous for the variety of its manufactures. It was at that time the chief and almost only point of mechanical and manufacturing industry in the county, excepting in Economy. Wool, paper, linseed oil, scythes, baskets, carpets, lasts, etc., were among the manufactures of the town in that day, but do not now exist there, and are superseded by large and more important works.

A road under the hills called the "Narrows," about a mile long, lies between this place and Beaver Falls. A good substantial covered bridge divides it from New Brighton, which last named place owes much of its population and wealth to the people and industries of this always busy and industrious village. About one-third of the distance between Beaver Falls and Fallston there is a dam built across the Beaver for the common use of New Brighton and this place. The water power which this dam and the race-way affords is immense, each side being entitled to one-half thereof. A race-way is constructed down the "Narrows" through the town to the works, where it gives some seventeen or eighteen feet fall for use. It was among the first to improve the power of these water falls for manufacturing purposes. John and Evan Pugh, David Townsend, Benjamin Townsend, Abel Townsend and Thos. Thorniley were among the early settlers. Miner, Champlin & Co., in 1828, established a factory for making buckets and tubs, which became in time a great business, and at a later day, under the firm of Miner & Merrick, was one of the very best managed and most successful works of the time in this county. Owing to the nature of the business and the developments of the west, the business could no longer be made to pay, and it is dead. In 1826 a wire works was erected and started by Reese, Townsend & Co. William P. Townsend & Co., the present proprietors, have in recent years built a solid and perfect stone building of large capacity, for the business. A large business has been successfully carried on for some years past in making.
superior white lead kegs. Besides these establishments there are the extensive saw mills of Miner & Co., M. & S. H. Darragh's machine and engine works, Herron & Kennedy's flour and grist mill, and John Thorniley's stove foundry.

The town has grown and extended over the second bench or plateau south of the water power works. In 1831 an Academy was built which was used for educational and religious purposes. The Presbyterians of the Falls of Beaver generally were organized into a church body, and had children baptized in it shortly after its erection by the pastor, Rev. Hughes, of Darlington, before the church building was erected in New Brighton. The history of manufacturers in this place is very suggestive, particularly in an economical view. In 1830, and for a short time before and after that date, wool carding for the farmers was a large business of the place. The farmers would bring their wool here to be carded, and when done would take it home and spin it into yarn, and either weave it at home or bring it, which was most commonly the case, to the woolen mills to be made into goods for male and female wear. In a short time, however, they came to believe it best to sell their wool for cash, or trade in the stores for wearing apparel. This ruined the business of wool carding, and in a great degree of the woolen factories.

NEW BRIGHTON.

This borough is situated on the eastern side of the Beaver, and is connected with Beaver Falls by a covered toll bridge built and finished by Le Bannon in 1833-4, and is a solid structure. A short distance above this the iron bridge of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railway Company crosses it also. In 1829 David Townsend purchased from Thomas Bradford, of Philadelphia, the tract of land No. 93, upon which the best part of the town has been since built. Mr. Townsend had purchased this tract, by articles of agreement, from the latter some considerable time previous, but paid no money on it, but was to pay $2,000 on a fixed day in the summer or early autumn of 1829. As early as 1801 David and Benjamin Townsend bought tract No. 94. Tract No. 95 was bought by James Patterson in July, 1829, from Oliver Ormsby, the title to the tract being then in David Shields, of Allegheny county, as it had been from an early day. In 1829 the only improvement upon No. 94 was the house of W. Webster, the large stone flour mill, unfinished, and perhaps a small house, one-story, near where the novelty works now are, and back east of the rising ground, Benjamin Townsend had then built the house where E. P. Townsend now lives.

The town, as it now stands, covers the western end—or parts of the two benches of them—No. 95, 94, 93, 92 and 91. The manufacturing business of the county was then mainly done in Fallston, and the owners of the works lived there. After the purchase of No. 93 Mr. David Townsend laid it out as the streets, etc., now are. The No. 94 was previously laid out as it is now. The first improvements, except the stone mill, were begun on No. 92. This town has its water power under the control of a water company, as has the Fallston owners their water power, and they both joined a short time ago in building a strong and safe new dam, and made also improvements in their race-way and head gates. They have now under good and safe command a very large water power of about eighteen feet fall. There were built and started many works upon this race-way, for various kinds of manufacturing. Circumstances have changed the character of many of them; fire destroyed some, and for various reasons the business in others has been changed. When Mr. Townsend died his executor sold the lots at public sale, and many of them were purchased by business men in Fallston who built and improved upon them, and themselves occupied them. The progress of the canal to completion, and when completed through the town a great impulse was given to its growth. The establishment of the United States Branch Bank here, also helped it much more, but the finishing of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad to the town, with the great partiality of the engineers and officers showed to it, made a wonderful addition to its business and growth. To all these good influences may be also added the fact that large tracts of land north-west of New Brighton, owned by the heirs of Benjamin Chew, Sr., were put into market, and sold rapidly to good, industrious improvers, who cleared the lands, and much helped markets and business in the town; to this also was added the same effects caused by the sales of large tracts of land owned by Thomas Bradford, by his grandson, B. R. Bradford, as agent resident in Beaver county.

New Brighton suffered severely, as did the whole of the county, by the failure of the United States Bank. Adversities from various causes were visited and fell upon some individuals and business firms, but the general course of the town has been very successful, much more so than usual, with young towns in a new country.

There lived—and yet are living—in this town numbers of persons who deserve to be mentioned and gratefully remembered for their influence upon the industries and growth of this town, Fallston, and the county generally, among whom may be mentioned John Pugh. He was a professional miller, and did much, in the purchase of wheat for his mills in Fallston, to promote the agricultural interests of the county, and as a President of the branch bank, in co-operation with the Cashier, Dr. W. H. Denny, did much to promote business in the Falls, and in the county generally. Robert Townsend was a model business man and a friend to the Falls. David Townsend, William-Townsend, Benjamin Wilde, John Miner, Silas Merrick, M. T. Kennedy and others, both living and dead, were most influential. The town is now lighted by gas, and it steadily improving, and is altogether a delightful place of residence, and destined to a much larger growth.

The industries of New Brighton are deserving of special notice in a description of the town, but the limited space forbids. In 1842 the Keystone Woolen Mills was established for the manufacture of cloths and cassimeres, by William Wilde, who for a period over thirty years successfully managed the enterprise. It is now owned by Mr. Bancroft, of New York, who proposes to devote the manufacture chiefly to flannels and water-proof. In addition these works there are the Novelty Works, employed in the manufacture of knitting machines, three large flouring mills, the Pennsylvania Bridge and Machine Works of T. B. White & Sons, Merrick’s Grate and Front Works, and the Pioneer Flax Mills of Bentley & Gerwig, all giving employment to a large number of persons, and by their success adding much to the prosperity of this enterprising borough. Here are nine churches of as many denominations.

BEAVER FALLS.

The site upon which New Brighton and Beaver Falls was in part first laid out, had the first improvements made upon it in the summer of 1801 by David Hoopes & Co., who had made the purchase previously referred to, but were obliged to purchase again from the occupants 50 acres, and some time thereafter another 50 acres, on which the erection of a grist and saw mill, forge, charcoal furnace, for pig
The iron, hollow-ware, stoves, etc., was begun and put into successful operation. In 1806 Isaac Wilson & Co., then the owners, had surveyed and laid out a plot of a town, and sold lots to improvers, built dwelling houses, etc., and a large business was done, to the great benefit of the county, by the four or five firms which succeeded each other as owners in quick succession. They called the new town Brighton. Oliver Ormsby kept the works in operation under the supervision of James Glen and John Dickey, until about 1818, when owing to the general depression in business, caused by the peace of 1814 with England, which removed all let and hindrance to English and other foreign iron and other manufactured goods flooding our country, to the ruin of home industry and all values, and to other causes, they shut down. Thus this place and its works, for so many years the chief and almost the only point of manufacturing industry in the county, remained dead, in ruins, until the year 1829, when it was purchased by James Patterson, long a citizen of Philadelphia, from Mr. Ormsby, and under his labor and expenditures it was re-built, and became a point from which very much money was spread abroad through the county and country around in the payment of labor and for wheat, wool, etc., for twenty years and more. Mr. Patterson had great difficulty in consummating the purchase with Mr. Ormsby, in consequence of he and the other owners of General Brodhead’s title to the land having piled up a bill of $10,000 damages against the General for money they had been obliged to pay to those in possession for wood, ores, land, etc., which they held against the balance due the General for the original purchase from him, he not having given them possession as he was bound to have done. The General’s heirs would not make deed without this balance being paid them. Mr. Patterson, to avoid law suits and trouble agreed, finally, to pay the balance due the heirs of General Brodhead. Notwithstanding all this he was destined to contend at law through many vexatious, costly and damaging law suits to make good his titles, and become free from his opponents, who were many and influential.

The suits growing out of the disputed parts of the two tracts of land sold by General Brodhead to David Hoopes & Co., in 1801, and which the former began in the United States District Court in Philadelphia in 1812, and obtained a judgment in his favor and had the United States Marshall dispossess the occupants, were unfortunately not terminated finally until about the year 1865 or 1866, when the United States Supreme Court in Banc decided the last of them in favor of James Patterson, which made General Brodhead's title good; after having in his favor one verdict in the Beaver county Court, affirmed in the State Supreme Court, and twice in the United States District Court of Pennsylvania. This is the same case in which when one of the lawyers was pleading before Judge David Greer for a new trial, a verdict having been rendered for Mr. Patterson, the Judge on the bench said to him that in all his experience, which was great, as a Surveyor, a Lawyer and a Judge in Pennsylvania State Courts, and in the United States Court, he had never known a case of land ejectment to come into Court so weak in every respect as this one which he was attorney for, nor one so strong and clear as that of the plaintiff, Mr. Patterson. These suits were costly and most vexatious, and very injurious to the best interests of the county, and were prosecuted not by the original settlers or claimants, but by neighboring proprietors who, while improving their own properties were tempted to disregard "party lines" in doing so, owing to the absence and neglect of the owner of the Brighton estate.

In the year 1830 Brighton had no post office. In 1831 James Patterson was appointed postmaster, when by law it was entitled to a mail twice a week. The postmaster carried it at his own cost daily for many years from Beaver town. Beaver Falls now receives two mails daily from the east by railroad, and one from the west.

Leese & Robertson, paper makers, made agreement with Mr. Patterson to build a paper mill in Brighton in 1831, to be driven by steam power, for which, and heating purposes, Mr. P. agreed to supply the coal from his coal banks, delivered at the mill, for ten years time, for four and one-half cents per bushel. Experience proved the fact to Mr. Robertson, after running his mill by steam power some years, that he could make paper much more economically by water power than by that of steam, even with the coal costing only four and one-half cents per bushel, and he bought land and water power at the head of the falls, and built a paper mill which he operated successfully many years, and allowed his steam mill to go to decay and ruin, after removing such machinery as he could use in his new mill. Mr. Robertson, in the manufacture of paper and wall paper, gave employment to many and aided in promoting the general interest.
Having failed in his last effort to make sale of the whole property to the United States Government for an armory and foundry for big cannon, Mr. Patterson surrendered the property to the Harmony Society, who undertook the task of inducing private parties to buy by retail lots for dwellings, water lots for mills, etc. They revised the plot of Brighton, very much enlarging it, extending it along the Beaver nearly if not quite three miles, over ground remarkably well suited by nature for a town or city; and changed its name from Brighton to that of Beaver Falls. One reason for this change was that the place had been known by the name of Beaver Falls in the county, in its earliest days; and another reason, that New Brighton, having under the influences of the canal passing through it, and afterwards by the Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad stopping in it, and passing through its streets, and much favoring it, grew much larger than “Brighton,” and people were in the habit of dropping the “New,” and calling their town Brighton, and calling Brighton proper “Old Brighton.” This made confusion, and people were willing to adopt a name for which there could be no other claimant, at least in the county.

Beaver Falls has now grown to be one of the most important and well established manufacturing and successful business towns, not only of the county but of Western Pennsylvania. In the census of 1870 the population was found to be 3,112, which at present exceeds 4,500. There has been built, upon a triangular lot, surrounded by sixty feet streets—the gift of the Society—a large three story school house, at a cost of somewhere near $30,000, for the public schools. The town begins south of the toll bridge across the Beaver connecting Beaver Falls with New Brighton, and just at the mouth or northern end of the road called the “Narrows,” on the banks of the Beaver, between Falls-ton and Beaver Falls, the hills bearing to the northwest for some distance, and then turning to bear north-eastward, and the Beaver shore bearing from the bridge north-eastward for some distance, and then bending north-westward, make the plot of the town and valley much in the shape of a pear, the “Narrows” being the stem. In it is the toll bridge, the bridge of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad. The width of the river where the railroad bridge crosses it is 500 feet. The first dam above this bridge is 740 feet long, giving a fall of water for mill purposes of about twenty feet, flowing the water back nearly two miles, near to another dam across the Beaver, affording a fall of about the same value, and flowing a pool of water back about seven miles to the mouth of the Connoquenessing creek. The town extends north of this dam for a considerable distance. These two dams can, and will at a very early day, be made to give jointly not less than forty feet of fall, with a much greater supply of water than was ever at command for mill and manufacturing purposes, of which yet undisposed of there are much more than twice as much as is used on the river.

In the hills lying west of the town are veins of very good bituminous coal, the most of the veins now worked being a little over three feet thick. The hills on the east bank of the river have the same veins, with a greater thickness.

There is a gas company which supplies the borough with gas for the town lamps, etc. There is also a water company which may be said at present to consist of the Harmony Society, which has put up a water works, pumping the water for general use from a very large supply under the rocks underlaying the town, by improved machinery of great power. Pipes are laid through the streets and the houses supplied thereby with water. The Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad runs at the foot of the hills on the west side of the town.

The Beaver Falls Steel Works, Abel, Pedder & Co., began operations in 1875, and has now a capacity of making 1400 tons of steel per annum. The product is all crucible cast steel made by Siemens-Martin process. The number of hands employed is forty-five. Makes tool, file, cutlery, saw and agricultural steels. Materials used annually, 900 tons of wrought iron, 600 tons scrap steel, 90 tons coke, 1,000 tons coal, 2,000 bushels charcoal.

The Beaver Falls Cutlery Company has the largest works and the largest capital invested of any other in the borough or county, and was one of the first built in the new town; the capacity of the works now being such as to employ four hundred hands, of all kinds. The average number employed during the past year (1875) was 325; average monthly payment of wages during the past year, $11,000; amount of steel of all kinds consumed, 275 tons; the grindstones used exceeds 100 tons; Foreign woods used during the past year—ebony, cocoa, cobola, rosewood, etc., for handles—130 tons, besides which large amounts of native woods are used; emery used during the past year exceeds 14 tons; average daily products of the works during the past year, of all kinds of goods, including table goods, carvers, butchers, etc., 95 gross, and of pocket-cutlery manufactured 720 dozen. Besides the consumption named above there are consumed annually large amounts of iron, lumber and the many other kinds of material necessary in the prosecution of the business. Of the employees mentioned above about one hundred live in New Brighton. Of the Chinese brought from the south and the Pacific three years ago, a few over one hundred remain; those whose time had expired for which they had agreed to work, spread over towns and cities, some returning to the Pacific Shore again. For the past two years the conduct of these Chinese workmen has been remarkably good, quiet, peaceful and orderly, many of them have become good workmen, and are trying to learn to speak English, and regularly attend their Sunday School and religious services, for which purpose the company have fitted up a room very comfortable and suitable for the school, and have a gentleman engaged to teach and instruct them in reading our Bible, and explaining its teachings to them. The impression is now very generally entertained by the people that so many men of no other nationality would, living together to themselves, as they do, conduct themselves so entirely without giving some cause for fault finding as do these Chinese workmen. These works have very superior machinery, and are constantly making new improvements, and using every effort to make superior work, and to extend its products even to the foreign markets. The Economy Society and this company are now boring a well in the rock on the Beaver bank near their works, for gas, for its use in manufacturing, and it is believed will succeed.

The Pittsburgh Hinge Company has a capacity of 15,000 dozen pairs of hinges monthly; number of hands, 90; number of tons of iron worked monthly, 150; running full time since having been started up.

The Western File Company, Limited, ranks next in importance, and has been in operation since January, 1870—working six years, and now employs about two hundred hands, and uses one and one-half tons of steel per day; pay roll $7,000 per month; expect to make 200,000 dozen of files this present year, (1876). They use 175 tons of grindstones each year. This file works is the largest of the kind in the world, making files by patent machinery, and it is wonderful to see the machines cut the teeth in the steel, making the files more regular and uniform than is possible by hand. These works are on the east side of the town on the river bank, and are expecting the contemplated railroad to pass near to them soon, and also to have the water from the upper dam brought down to propel the works which are now operated by steam power.

Joseph Graff & Co's. Axe and Hoe works are located, like the file works, on the bank of the pool, and a little lower down. The firm had done business in Pittsburgh from 1857 to 1871 when they established their works on the Beaver. The buildings are very capacious, roomy and large, well suited to the purpose, having been erected under the personal supervision of Mr. Graff. They employ 125 skilled workmen, and use 100 tons of iron, 15 tons of steel per month, and turn out 100 dozen axes and 60 dozen hoes per day. They now use natural gas, taken from a well drilled for oil, for tempering their axes. They consume 5,000 bushels of coal and 4,000 bushels of coke per month.

Beaver Falls Co-operative Foundry works is on the west side of the town, near the railroad, and was established in 1872, and has twenty-seven members; the usual number of men employed is thirty; average annual production of stoves, hollow-ware, etc., about $40,000. The association is controlled by a President, Treasurer and five Directors. Thomas E. Bateman, President, Robert Paisley, Treasurer.

Emerson, Ford & Co's. Saw Works were commenced in 1871; capital $75,000; hands employed 30 to 35. The sales of their saws reach from Maine to Texas, and some have been shipped to New Zealand by the firm. Specialties manufactured are Emerson's patent planer tooth saw, Emerson's patent flange tooth saw, Emerson's patent Clipper tooth saw, Emerson's patent adjustable swages, also all kinds of solid tooth saws. Saws from this factory have carried off the premiums wherever contested. Business is rapidly increasing.

Economy Stove and Hollow-Ware Works, A. F. Wolf & Co., proprietors, was established in 1868. Employ 45 men; monthly pay roll, $3,320; manufactured in 1875, 4,520 cooking and heating stoves and 17,360 pieces of hollow-ware, in addition to a large amount of stove supplies. Amount of pig iron used during the year, 5,600 tons, and 5,670 bushels of Connellsville coke were used during the same time.

H. M. Meyers & Co., Limited, Shovel works, has a capacity to turn out 50 dozen of shovels and spades per day. They make all kinds of shovels, scoops, etc. They employ 60 persons, and consume large quantities of iron, steel and ash wood, etc., for handles.
The Beaver Falls Flour Mills have been rebuilt lately, and are now prepared to do a large business, and manufacture a superior article of flour for the home and Pittsburgh markets.

In addition to the foregoing large manufacturing establishments there are quite a number of very valuable, and to the place important works, each of which does a large business, and in the aggregate employ many hands, and spend much money for labor and materials. The planing mills of Wilson & Brierly and Simon Harrold & Co., are each situated on the race; each firm are contractors for buildings, and do a large business in connection with lumber yards. There are also Algeo's Burial Casket works, Beaver Falls Machine Shop, Beaver Falls Foundry. These works are driven by steam power, and are well fitted with machinery to do a large business. There are besides a paper mill and glass works, not now in operation. Hall Bros. carriage works are also located here. There are several coal mines in operation, employing many miners in getting out coal, a brick yard, etc.

ECONOMY.

The site of this town of economy and industry was purchased by Rev. George Rapp, for the Harmony Society, then living in New Harmony, State of Indiana, and to which the Society removed in the year 1825, having lived there ten years, and increasing in numbers and wealth during their stay, and having previously, as a Society, lived in Harmony, Butler county, Pennsylvania, previous to their removal to Indiana. The site upon which they built their new town of Economy is one of the most beautiful any where upon the banks of the Ohio, or elsewhere. It is on elevated ground, sloping gently back from the river. Their numbers were then much above seven hundred souls, and they at once began the erection of dwellings, mills, factories, etc., such as are usually necessary for so large a population in a busy manufacturing town. Rev. George Rapp, as spiritual-head father, and Frederick Rapp as temporal business manager, were still with them as in Butler county and the State of Indiana. Their thus coming again into Pennsylvania had very great influence upon the general interests and prosperity of this county, which continued to increase in their influence and power for good constantly to the present time. They built a woolen factory where a very large quantity of wool was manufactured into blankets, sattinets, etc., and they purchased large quantities of the wool raised in the county; a cotton factory, spinning coarse cotton for sale, and weaving much of it into sheetings, shirtings, etc., and many other branches of manufactures. They cleared and cultivated many acres of good land, and everything went on prosperously until the appearance in the Society of a man calling himself Count Leon—an enthusiast and imposter as he finally proved himself to have been—when under his influence and that of the women and others brought with him, discord and ill feelings arose, which ended in a division of the Society, about one-third of their number leaving the Society with Count Leon, under the wise counsel of Father Rapp, by a compromise paying them in cash $105,000 to leave the place altogether, which they did, and purchased land and formed a new society under Leon, at what is now known as Phillipsburgh, on the Ohio river, nearly opposite Beaver.

The Society, after the departure from among them of the discontented, lived prosperously and happy under the lead of Father Rapp until his death, which occurred on the 7th day of August, 1847. He was a most remarkable man in many respects. "He made and left his impress upon the Society, which still exists as he left it, only with diminution of numbers." And it may be further said that this impression was even more remarkable upon those of the Society who left it with Leon, after having been long years under his training and spiritual influences, that while going out with Leon, and into the world to do for themselves—as many did from the time of first leaving, and all of them did afterwards—each and all of them continued without exception to conduct themselves as good citizens, moral and upright, and many of them to-day are among the best citizens of the county; and all of them speak and talk kindly and respectfully of Mr. Rapp, and the Society and its later leaders.

The influence of the Society has been largely for good in all the country around them, and especially the examples they furnished in economy, gardening, farming, sheep raising, etc. Upon the death of George Rapp, R. L. Baker and Jacob Henrici were formally elected Trustees, and took charge of all temporal interests of the Society, under whose administration, as the members decreased naturally, and their factories ceased to be operated at home, turned their attention, under the special care particularly of Mr. J. Henrici, to outside enterprises, as had not been done during the lifetime of Father Rapp, and with great and marked benefits to the interests of the Society and to the objects and neighborhoods where this attention and influence were directed; and during the lifetime of Mr. R. L. Baker the reputation and respect for these Trustees, as good business men of large and liberal views, was much increased very generally. The influence of the Society under their Trusteeship, extended far and wide. They showed themselves ready and willing to aid every good work which promised to promote the public good. Though conscientiously non-combatants they were most zealous and hearty supporters of the government during the war, and not only contributed money for the relief of the soldiers, but paid large bounties for substitutes for any that were drafted for the army, or called for from their military division of the county. Under their direction the Darlington cannel coal field was developed, and a very superior railroad some six or seven miles long made from the mines opened to New Galilee, connecting with the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad. Their means and influence was mainly instrumental in making the Little Saw Mill railroad, which brought out and still continues to bring such large quantities of good coal, of so much benefit to the many rolling mills and other industries in that neighborhood, and for export. But in the midst of this benefical labor R. L. Baker, that faithful Trustee and good christian man, died, much regretted in and out of the Society. He lived devoted to what he believed to be religious duty; self-denying and faithful to all duties he died. After the death of their beloved Baker the Society elected Jonathan Lenz as a Trustee with Jacob Henrici—the latter as senior and spiritual leader. Mr. Lenz had been one of the first in the Society, and was greatly respected.

Beaver Falls had made much progress in the development of its natural advantages under the care and nursing of Baker & Henrici, in which Mr. Baker had taken much interest, and to whom it owes its name of Beaver Falls, and this efficient care and interest has been since extended to the great benefit of the town and its various industries, and to the whole county, with good and certain prospects of great pecuniary benefits in the near future of the Society. And it is firmly believed that Beaver Falls will prove to be in all time, as it is now, the most material monument in memory of the Harmony Society and its Trustees of any other which they may or can leave of the good they have or may do upon earth.

The members of the Society are all now old or elderly men and women, with quite a number of persons, mainly young, who live with them. They are the same economical, industrious, frugal people they ever were. Their church is a fine building, in which there is a large clock in the steeple, and bells, and during the whole of the existence of this church and the Society at Economy, it would have been, and would now be a good lesson as to how Christian people should conduct themselves on entering the house of God, while they remain there, and their departure. In this church upon the bell ringing the people enter and in a very short time all are quietly seated, are grave and soberly attentive during the services, and afterward depart orderly; none entering or departing during the time of worship. The Trustees, Messrs. Henrici & Lenz, are fully and actively occupied in the discharge of all their various and special duties and cares. Their and the Society's whole lives have been examples worthy of study, and in almost all things of imitation.

ROCHESTER BOROUGH.

Rochester is situated on the east side of the Beaver river at the junction of that stream with the Ohio, and contains about twenty-five hundred inhabitants. It has an extensive front upon the river and a very good landing for steamboats to load and unload freight and passengers. It is favorably situated for manufacturing, which is now being carried on to a considerable extent.

The Rochester Tumbler Company's Glass Works are located here, and doing a large business. Also the Rochester Burial Casket works, the Rochester Foundry, Pendleton Bros. Fire Brick works, Scott & Co's Lumber Yard and Saw Mill, L. H. Oatman's Lumber Yard, Saw and Planing Mills, Miller & Co's. Planing Mill, Sash and Door Factory, William Miller's Planing Mill, Sash and Door Factory, which, together with other minor works, give employment to a large number of hands. The advantages for shipping to all parts of the country are unsurpassed. In addition to the Ohio river there are the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad, the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad, the Erie & Pittsburgh railroad, the Mahoning Valley railroad, and the New Castle and Franklin railroad all passing and stopping here each way.

The attention of capitalists was first directed to this point about 1835. Ovid Pinney came here about that time and purchased a large amount of land, and laid out a town, but owing to the crash of 1838-40, a damper fell on the place, from which it did not recover until 1850, when the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago and the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroads were commenced, and a new impetus given to the place. The early pioneers here were Rev. Francis Reno, and his sons Lewis and William, Atlas E. Lacock, William Porter, George Hinds, Sylvester Dunham, Samuel and John Stiles, Wilson Frazier, John
Boles, Charles and John M. Lukens, Hamilton Clark, Clark, Parks &
Co., James A. Sholes, Frederick C. H. Speyerer and George C. Speyerer.

PHILIPSBURGH.

This village is situated on the south-side of the Ohio river, opposite the mouth of the Beaver river, and was occupied and improved as a boat yard for building steamboats, keel-boats, etc., for quite a number of years before 1832, when they sold, the lands and improvements to Count Leon. This purchase included some 800 acres of lands, which were purchased for a number of seceders from the Economy Society, and others. They were led by this Count—a religious enthusiast.
Those leaving received, from the Society in consideration of their peaceful departure, $105,000. They changed their name to New Philadelphia Society, and their town to New Philadelphia. They erected a hotel, factories, etc., and proposed to rival Economy in manufacturing. They organized a Society with Count Leon as President and a board of twelve managers, which lasted some eighteen months, and then it was dissolved and the property divided. Those who remained after the dissolution of the Society formed a company and carried on a woolen and grist mill for eight years, and then dissolved. Count Leon, with his followers, went southward. The large buildings were sold to Dr. Acker, who opened a "Water Cure" that was highly successful for years. He sold to Dr. Baels, who also met with success.

Beaver county was the first to organize in the western part of the State a regular Soldiers' Orphan School, under State appointment.
The uncertainty that was involved in the State continuing its appropriations, the small sum allowed for each child, and the fact that not less than $20,000 would be required at once for buildings and grounds, furniture for house and school, books and apparatus for 150 orphans, deterred educators from venturing on the risk. At the solicitation of friends of these orphans Rev. W. G. Taylor, D. D., consented to undertake the work. The County Superintendents of Beaver, Allegheny and Washington counties applied to Dr. Burroughs for his appointment; Colonel Quay made a similar request of Governor Curtin, and he was immediately commissioned. The only buildings in either of the above counties that could be obtained, at all suitable for the commencement, were those formerly used as the “Water Cure,” but latterly used as a pleasure resort, at Phillipsburgh. These were repaired and new buildings twice the size of the old were added, until the accommodations and arrangements had reached a remarkable degree of perfection and adaptation. There were added 210 acres of garden and farm land, with four houses and three barns and stables, and four fruit orchards; the entire products were used in the school. The entire expense of the purchase and preparation ($48,000) was paid by Dr. Taylor, as the State made no appropriation for buildings, furniture or grounds, and only $150 per annum for children over ten years of age, and $115 for those under that age; this included boarding, clothing, education, books, doctor bills and all expenses. The institution employed twenty-two persons, five of whom were experienced teachers.

The State prescribed eight grades as to the extent of the educational course, and to them Dr. Taylor added four additional as a mathematical and scientific course, and some of the orphans were able to complete the twelve, and many the tenth grade with great thoroughness. The average of the school on the annual State examination for the last five years being from 90 to 95. The State Superintendent and Mrs. Hutter, the State Inspectress, and the County Superintendent also, gave this school the highest commendation for progress, advancement, thoroughness and discipline.

Dr. Taylor, with the aid of his wife, his constant and efficient helper, organized a system of industrial detail labor, by which every girl in the institution acquired a thorough knowledge of all domestic work, housekeeping, family sewing and dress making, so that they were fitted in a remarkable degree for the duties of life, when going out to do for themselves at sixteen years of age. All the surroundings and training was calculated to refine the taste and manners; this culture was apparent in their persons and deportment as seen in the house, the school, and when abroad on public occasions.

The discipline of this school was considered by competent judges and educators the highest success, and its wisdom is demonstrated by the remarkable success which attends the orphans trained in this school.
as they go out to make their own way in the world. Dr. Taylor has an object and end in view in his discipline, and was therefore firm and strict while he was kind and reasonable, and has received the thanks of many mothers and children, although a few children, refractory, self-willed, un studious and hard to manage thought he was too strict. The health of this school has been most remarkable. In over 600 children, one-third diseased when received, only four deaths in ten and a half years, and every one discharged in good health. The clothing of the pupils was good; at school it consisted of working suits and a handsome uniform for boys and girls for Sunday. The working suits were often well patched, and here the girls learned to patch and darn well.

On the 22d of August, 1876, at 11 o'clock A. M., during the absence of Dr. Taylor in the east, the main dwelling building took fire, (the origin could not be discovered,) and was entirely destroyed; loss $25,000, insurance $10,300. As the brief period of two and a half years would not justify the re-building and re-furnishing, this school closed after a successful career of ten and a half years, and the children were transferred to other Soldiers' Orphans' Schools whose numbers were diminishing.

FREEDOM BOROUGH.

This borough is situated on the north-west bank of the Ohio river above Rochester, and adjoining it. It was founded in 1832 by Stephen Phillips and Jonathan Betz, who entered into partnership in steamboat building, for which the place was deemed well suited, and where a great many good boats, large and small, have been built by this firm, and by that of Phillips & Graham. By the census of 1870 the population was 634, and as the place is prosperous and growing, the present number is estimated to be 800. There are a saw mill, lath, shingle, sash and door factory, fire brick and other industrial minor works.

DARLINGTON is a village nine miles northwest of Beaver, and was a thriving place in stage coach times, and before railroads; since then it has barely held its own. It was for many years well and favorably known for its church and academy, where many received from the Rev. Mr. Hughes and other teachers, a good education. It is situated on the Little Beaver creek, in the midst of a thriving farming and mining district.
Besides the towns particularly mentioned, there are many other towns and villages filled with a busy, thriving population, and some of them well worthy of special notice.

There is on the Ohio river above Freedom, the town of Baden, through which passes the railroad, and also Remington; and below Beaver on the Ohio, and the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad, the large and prosperous town of "Industry," and another equally so—Smith's Ferry—at the mouth of Little Beaver, upon which creek there are in operation 150 producing oil wells—total production of oil 110 barrels per day. A pipe line three and one-half miles long, with a branch, brings the oil to Smith's Ferry, where there are three refineries.

Georgetown Borough is a fine residential village, located on the south-side of the Ohio river, about 12 below Beaver. The village was laid out by Benoni Dawson on the 13th of January, 1793, and is consequently one of the first settlements of the county. Among the early settlers we may mention the Poes, the Laughlins, the Dawsons, the Beavers and Calhouns. It was near this place that Adam Poe, then acting as an Indian spy, is said to have had the encounter with the celebrated Indian chief Big Foot, in which the latter lost his life. The location of Georgetown is one of the finest sites on the Ohio river for residential purposes, but owing to the lack of railway facilities the place has made but moderate advancement for some years past. The borough was incorporated February 25th, 1850, and the first commissioners of election were Samuel Smith, James Todd and Adam Poe.

Hookstown borough, located in Greene township, and about four miles north of Georgetown, is one of the oldest and most substantial villages of the county. On account of the lack of railroad facilities its growth for many years past has been scarcely perceptible, but owing to the fertility of the land by which it is surrounded, the village has always—to use a common expression—held its own.

Independence, situated on Raccoon creek, in Independence township, Sheffield and New Scottsville, situated in Hopewell township, are also flourishing villages of some importance.

A growing town—New Galilee—is on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad, some seven miles northwest from Beaver Falls, and near to Darlington.
Above Beaver Falls on the Beaver river and the railroad to Erie and the west, there are the towns of Homewood and Clinton. In fact it may be said that along the Ohio river and railroads through the county, population and towns are almost, and ultimately will be continuous, and this is also the case up the Beaver river to the Lawrence county line.

A thriving country town near the Washington county line should be mentioned—Frankfort—near which is the Frankfort Springs, a favorite resort for health and recreation during the summer months.

Near the Village of Cannelton, on the Little Beaver Creek, an Indian chief had his hunting cabin or camp. He spent a large portion of each year at this place in hunting deer and wild turkeys. He was so engaged during the first visit of Col. Washington to Logstown, and runners had to be sent out for him. His old camp grounds are quite noted for stone and flint relics. I. F. Mansfield, of Cannelton, possesses over one hundred pieces that have been gathered in the vicinity. Col. Boquet, in his expedition against the Ohio Indians, encamped near here October 7th, 1764. A small hill occupied by one of his outposts still retains the name of "Boquet's Knob."

A Theological Seminary was founded in Beaver county in 1793-4, by the Associate Presbytery of Beaver, afterwards called the Associate Synod of North America, and now a component part of the United Presbyterian body. The Divinity Hall was called "Eudolpha Hall," with a view of signifying that the students were, or at least, should be kindly affectionate toward each other. It was situated in the valley of Service creek a quarter of a mile to the eastward from the point at which the county road from Beaver courthouse to the village of Frankfort enters the Service valley. The site of the Seminary was lowly and all its surroundings were very humble. There was no magnificent edi-_fice for the reception and accommodation of the students. At the first the Professor read his lectures and the students delivered their trial performances in one of the rooms of the Professor's dwelling, which was a log cabin like the other dwellings in the neighborhood. But after eight or ten years a Seminary building was erected at the expense of the Associate Church, and divided into several apartments. That building is still standing, and the curious may see it by calling on Mr. Joshua Hunter, of Service. It was not costly nor imposing in appearance but very plain, consisting of hewn timbers, compacted together and daubed with clay of a yellowish cast, 30 by 20 feet, and two stories in height. The excellency of the institution lay not in any material thing in or about it, but in the great learning, good taste and eminent piety of the Professor, the Rev. John Anderson, D. D., pastor of the associate congregations of Service and King’s Creek. He was born and educated in Scotland, and continued in his native country till 1784. He was a small man with a weak voice and very slow delivery, but in intellectual ability and extensive reading he had in his day but few equals. He was very logical in his reasonings, and in his deliverances as clear as the stream that gushes from the mountain side. The following divines studied theology under Dr. Anderson, viz: William Wilson, Daniel McLain, Thomas Allison, David Imbrie, James Ramsey, James Pringle and Francis his brother, David French, Joseph Scroggs, Elijah Scroggs, David Blair, Thomas Beveridge, Thomas Hanna, James Adams, Abraham Anderson, etc. Many of these had a great hand in christianizing the people of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, and in making them to be what they are; and some of them attained to high distinction in the church and in society, as Dr. James Ramsey, who was Professor of Didactic Theology in the Associate Seminary for twenty-one years, Dr. Abraham Anderson, who occupied the same place for eight years, Dr. Thomas Beveridge, Professor of Biblical Literature for 37 years, Dr. Alexander McLelland, Professor of Moral Philosophy in Dickinson College, Carlisle.

Dr. Anderson wrote and published five volumes, which are in the hands of many. One of them, his “Dissertation on Saving Faith,” has had a large circulation, having passed through several editions. He continued to conduct the Seminary until May, 1821. In the spring of that year, having become infirm through age, he resigned his Professorship. The Seminary was then transferred to Canonsburg, where it continued until October, 1855. At that time, under the direction of the Associate Synod, it was removed to Xenia, Green county, Ohio, where it is at this time, bearing the name of the “Xenia Theological Seminary of the United Presbyterian Church.”
Slavery in Beaver County.

The act for the gradual abolition of slavery in Pennsylvania was passed finally on the 1st of March, 1780, and among other things provided “that no child born hereafter of slave parents shall be held a slave, but a servant, until the age of twenty-eight years, when all claim for further service shall cease.” At the organization of Beaver county in 1803 there were four slaves held within its limits. When the census was taken in 1810 there were eight in the county; in 1820 there were five. When the census was again taken in 1830 there were none—all having in the meantime died or passed by law from a condition of servitude to a state of freedom. It has been quite difficult to learn much of the history of the persons here referred to as slaves, but from the data accessible we append the following:

Mr. James Nicholson, a farmer residing in Big Beaver township owned the services of three of them. Their names were, respectively, Pompey Frazier, Tamar Frazier and Betty Mathers. By a deed dated May 6th, 1819, Mr. Nicholson and wife conveyed to the three “servants” here named the farm on which they resided, but the deed was to be void and of no effect as long as Nicholson and his wife lived. At their death the land was to be taken possession of by the “servants” and their issue, if any they had. Ten years after the deed was executed Nicholson died, and soon after one of the “servants”—Tamar—also died. Pompey and Betty continued to live with Mrs. Nicholson until her death some years later, after which they came into full and complete possession of the farm. Pompey died without issue, but Betty married a man named Henry Jordan, in 1840, with whom she had several sons and daughters, some of them being still residents of this county. The tract of land here referred to was sold by Betty, the greater portion of the town of New Galilee having since been built upon it. She died in 1872.

A colored man named Isaac Hall was bought at auction in Baltimore about the year 1810, and brought to this county by his purchaser, Capt. John Osman, in whose service he continued for many years, and up until his death.

Early in the history of the county Mr. Levi Dungan, who afterwards resided near the present site of Frankfort Springs, brought with him from Philadelphia two slaves, known as Fortune and Lunn. These persons were in his service until they died. One of them—Lunn—at his own request was buried beneath the spreading branches of a large apple tree, which is pointed out to this day, and is known as “Lunn’s tree.” About the year 1820 the late John Roberts, Esq, of Hanover towship, brought with him from Fauquier county, Va., two slaves named Henry and Henley Webster, with whom they lived for many years after coming to this county. One, or perhaps both, of them are still alive, and reside in the vicinity of Hookstown, this county.

[Through an oversight on the part of the writer of the History of the county, the name of Benjamin Wilde, Esq., was omitted as one of the gentlemen who established the Woolen Mills at New Brighton in 1842. The omission occurs on page 30.—Pub.]

NEWSPAPERS.

The Minerva was the first newspaper published in Beaver, and was started by Joseph Israel in 1807. The Western Cabinet, at Beaver, in September, 1811, by Joseph W. White. The Crisis, in May, 1813, by James Logan. The Beaver Gazette, by Andrew Logan, May, 1813. Both the last named were consolidated June, 1813, named the Crisis & Beaver Gazette, by A. & J. Logan. The Western Argus was started by James Logan, September 1st, 1818, and of which Thomas Henry became editor and proprietor in 1824, and so continued until 1830, when Wm. Henry succeeded him as editor and proprietor, until the latter end of 1851, when he was succeeded by Michael Weyand and A. G. Henry. The editorial control of the Argus, after Weyand and Henry disposed of the paper, changed quite frequently between then and 1866, at which time it was purchased and edited by Jacob Weyand, until 1873, when it and the Radical were united. The Aurora was started by James Logan & Co. in March, 1835. The Western Star was started, edited and published by M. S. Quay, in the year 1868, and was united with the Argus, under the name of the Argus & Radical, in 1873, J. S. Rutan and Jacob Weyand, editors. The Beaver Times was started in 1874, editor and proprietor, Michael Weyand. The Beaver Valley News was started in New Brighton in the year 1874, Reader and Critchlow, proprietors, and F. S. Reader, editor. The Courier was started in Beaver Falls in 1875, John F. Porter, editor and proprietor.

SELLERS FAMILY MEDICINES.

Sellers’ Vermifuge

IS THE BEST IN USE.

Point Pleasant, Virginia.

Mr. R. E. Sellers.—Of your vermifuge I can say, without hesitation, that having used it extensively in my practice for the last four or five years, I think it decidedly the best preparation of the kind of which I have any knowledge, although I have heretofore used the preparations of several other manufacturers.

Yours, Respectfully,

D. Gough, M. D.

READ.

“One teaspoonful of your Vermifuge was given to a child of Mr. Bradbury’s, about twenty months old, and a single dose expelled 234 large worms in four hours after taking the medicine.”

Benjamin Lytle, Union Township, Pa.

Price, 25c a box. Sold by all Druggists.

Sellers’ Liver Pills.

Have been the Standard Remedy for the cure of Liver Complaints, Costiveness, Sick Headache and all derangements of the Stomach and Liver for over Fifty Years. READ: “Sellers’ Liver Pills cured me of an attack of Liver Complaint of eight years standing.” Wm. Evans, Joliet, Ills.

FALLSTON FOUNDRY,
JOHN THORNILEY, Proprietor, MANUFACTURER OF THE

Great Republic Cooking Stove,

And Manufacturer and Dealer in Castings Generally.

It is claimed that the Great Republic is the best and cheapest Cooking Stove in the world—most durable, requires less fuel, and bakes evenly and perfectly without extra heating or attention. As this Stove is sold exclusively by the manufacturer, purchasers will find it to their interest to buy direct of him at first cost; besides any parts of the Stove can easily be replaced at any time.

THORNILEY'S NEW PLOW.

MANUFACTURED BY

JOHN THORNILEY.

FALLSTON, PENNA.

We have just completed two entirely new patterns of the GREAT WESTERN PLOW—both right and left hand—with the very latest and most useful improvements included.

These Well Known Plows have stood the test for the past FIFTEEN YEARS, and with the Improvements recently added thereto, will be found by far The Best Right and Left-Hand Plows in the market. Farmers should not fail to call and examine the Merits of these Plows before purchasing.

AS THE PURCHASE

is or may be an act for a lifetime, care should be taken to select one that time and use have proven to be the best. Time tries all things. "Use only furnishes the final test." Opinions of the skillful may be of value, but time is needed to confirm them.

While the

has given the public the best fruits of inventive genius, they have guarded it from a multitude of traps. Attachments have been added for various purposes, but it has kept free from all useless complications.

SIMPLICITY OF PARTS

and adaptation to the widest range of work, has been the constant aim.

Instead of boasting of a variety of useless stitches and movements, it claims to make but one kind of stitch, and that with the fewest movements possible. Hence the machine may run constantly for twenty years, or a lifetime, and work just as well as when new.

W. W. WALLACE,
ENTERPRISE WORKS,
COLUMBIANA, OHIO,
MANUFACTURES AND SELLS, WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,

Open Coal Grates, Fronts, Fenders, Summer Fronts, &c., &c., a large variety, (including the Patent Raking Grate described on adjoining page,) of beautiful patterns and handsome finish. Also the

"WELCOME"
Sulky Hay Rake,

Self Dumper, Steel Teeth, High Wheels, the easiest handled Rake in the world, the best for gleaning over rough ground, and the only Rake that can run backwards, teeth down, without injury. N. B.—Responsible agents wanted in every township to sell our Rakes.

Strickler's Boring Machine,
Self-withdrawing, runs light, the stand all iron, will last a lifetime, retailed with Augurs, at $8. Strickler's Portable Mortising Machine, all iron, can be packed in a tool chest. Retailed at $25.

Horse Powers with Drag and Circular Saw Attachments,
The Saw and Pitman move on an oscillating slide, always in line, and require no stop to shift the log. Can run with two or four horses, and cut 25 to 50 cords of wood per day if properly handled.

Patent Cast Bob Runners, Per Set, $10.00.

Oven Fronts and Tuyer Irons for Blacksmiths $2. Pit Car Wheels and Axles, Grate Bars, Sled Soles, Sash Weights and Tire Binders on hand and made to order.

Job Work Executed with Neatness and Dispatch.

Retail Prices Low. A Liberal Discount to Dealers and Agents.

Correspondents, for whom it will be more convenient, can address me at 319, 321 Liberty Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., or at Columbiana, Ohio.

W. W. WALLACE.
MARBLE MANTELS!

MARBLEIZED MARBLE MANTELS,

The largest stock and most beautiful variety in the city, always on hand at 319, 321 Liberty Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A marble mantel is always neat, is easily kept clean, and adds more to the beauty of a house than any other article of equal cost, and makes it rent and sell better.

Wash Stands, Furniture, Counter Tops, Floor Tile, and Marble and Stone Hearths made to order.

We have also on hand a large stock of which we offer at reduced prices.

MARBLE & GRANITE MONUMENTS, TABLETS, &c.,

BLOCK & SLAB MARBLE Sawed to Order at EASTERN PRICES.

We also manufacture and sell wholesale and retail a large variety of

of beautiful patterns, finished with black enamel or plated with nickel or gold.

Our Patent Grate with the Pendulum Raker is very beautiful, so simple that a child can operate it, so efficient as to clean all obstructions from between the bars in three seconds; an economical burner and the best of heaters. Having a beautiful, ornamented lattice screen which prevents the escape of dust and ashes, it is one of the cleanest of grates. Warranted to give satisfaction. N.

B.—Our shaking and other grates will fit in the fronts of nearly all other manufacturers, and can be put into old fronts if desirable.

GRATES FOR ASH PITS, GRATE TILE AND FIRE BRICK CONSTANTLY ON HAND.

Retail Price Low. A Liberal Discount to Dealers and Agents.

Orders addressed to me at 319, 321 Liberty street, Pittsburgh, Pa., filled with dispatch.

To the producers and dealers of Beaver county our situation and facilities enable us to offer a superior market for every product of the farm, garden and orchard.

We receive at the depots all goods shipped us, and make prompt and full remittances, thus converting your produce into cash and allowing you to avoid the expense and trouble incidental to a trip to market.

To makers and shippers of good Butter we furnish packages, with instructions how to pack and ship in a manner that will insure them highest prices, and a constant demand for all their product.

OUR WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

giving full and accurate review of the Produce Markets mailed regularly, on application, free. We specially attend to filling orders for any goods in our market. Orders from parties with whom we have no acquaintance should be accompanied by good reference, otherwise we will have to ship C. O. D., or sight draft, with bill of lading attached.

NEW BRIGHTON, PA., Jan. 12, 1877.

I, Sadie E. McCleery, hereby certify that having been afflicted with Scrofuletic Sore Eyes, and having been under the treatment of several of the most eminent physicians of the county, receiving no benefit, but gradually growing worse, I at length applied to Dr. R. Steinfeld, under whose treatment, in the short space of two months, my eyes were entirely cured, and my general health restored.

It is now four or five months since I quit the Doctors' treatment, and I have not had a single symptom of a relapse, therefore I can cheerfully recommend all who may be afflicted as I have been by all means to consult Dr. R. Steinfeld, without delay.

Attest: SADIE E. McCLEERY.

NEW BRIGHTON, PA., Jan. 12, 1877.

We, the undersigned, father and mother of Sadie E. McCleery, do hereby endorse most heartily her statements above made as being true in every particular, and gladly join her in recommending Dr. R. Steinfeld's unfailing remedies to all those who may be suffering from any species of Scrofulous affection.

WILLIAM S. McCLEERY,
MARTHENA McCLEERY.

TO THE THOUSANDS

who suffer from Piles Dr. R. Steinfeld's Magnetic Salve will give immediate relief.

ARBUCKLES' ROASTED COFFEE,
Pure Spices and Baking Powder,
ALWAYS FULL WEIGHT.

ARBUCKLES

Are now selling five times as much Roasted Coffee as any other Roaster in America. Take no package that does not bear their name in large letters across the face, and you are sure of getting

SWEET, WHOLESOME COFFEE,
And each Package Containing 16 Ounces of Coffee.

The pores of Arbuckles' Coffee are hermetically sealed by ingredients which are perfectly healthy, and which also clarifies or settles them, so that when cooked they will pour out as CLEAR AS AMBER.

Thus saving the expense of eggs required when either loose roasted or other brands of Coffee are used.

DENTIST.

I would say to my friends and old patrons that I am now prepared to do work in the best and most perfect manner. In the building up of the natural teeth with gold we take the liberty of saying that some of our new appliances enable us to accomplish our work in a superior manner. We are fully prepared with all the latest improvements to perform the most skilful operations, and to apply all the various anesthetics to prevent pain to the patient. I need offer no better evidence of the safe and pleasant effects of these anesthetics than the fact that I have administered them for over 30 years to hundreds, and have never roped or strapped a patient to the chair.

GIVE US A CALL AND SATISFY YOURSELF.

All work warranted. Teeth inserted at from $10 to $75 per set.

Dr. J. M. Lindsey's Improved Blood Searcher

Is the Great Remedy for all Blood Diseases, such as Ulcers, Scrofulous Diseases, Erysipelas, Pimples, Boils, Sore Eyes, Scald Head, Mercurial Diseases &c.

SAVED BY LINDSEY'S BLOOD SEARCHER.

PAINESVILLE, O., October 6th, 1874.

MESSRS. R. E. SELLERS & CO.—Our son was taken sick with what our family physician pronounced pneumonia. He treated him for this disease, but the boy grew worse. An abscess formed in his side which, on being punctured, discharged two quarts of matter. We became exceedingly alarmed, and called in the best physicians of Cleveland. They pronounced the disease scrofula of the worst form and that death only could relieve the sufferer. As the physicians could do nothing, we were persuaded to try the Blood Searcher, and to our great surprise and delight he began immediately to improve. We continued its use, and in a very short time he was restored to perfect health. Our boy's life was saved by the use of this wonderful medicine.

I endorse the above statement as true.

Seller's Imperial Cough Syrup, the Great Curative.

PITTSBURGH, April 19, 1853.

R. E. SELLERS— I have been troubled with a cough for the last five years, by reason of which I have frequently been unable to sleep more than half the night. I tried many remedies, but all in vain. I heard of your Cough Syrup, and resolved to try it, and now state that the use of a few bottles has cured me entirely. I cheerfully recommend it as a safe, speedy and pleasant cure for coughs and colds.

Yours Respectfully, WM. WOODS.

INDUSTRY, PA., MAY 6, 1874.

I, Col. Richard Walton, do hereby certify that my son, Wm. M. Walton, living in Wood county, Ohio, was well enough in the morning and took sick whilst eating his dinner. He sent for a doctor, and he doctored him for inflammatory rheumatism for three weeks. Finding my son growing worse, I concluded to bring him home, and did so. We called in our family doctor and he pronounced the disease to be the same as the first doctor had pronounced it. I found my boy was still getting worse. I took some of his water to a doctor in Pittsburgh, and she told me what ailed the boy. She said his blood had been poisoned, and that he had never taken anything to purify it, and that it had settled in his leg, and she said she would not give any medicine till he had been kept on lemon tea for four days. She said he had taken too much strong medicine already. I came home and sent for another doctor, and when he came he met our family doctor, and he described the disease as follows: He called it coxalgia, or scrofulous affection, or white swelling. Now he changed the treatment, and for a while we thought he was better. He controlled the pain by chloriform liniment, but that soon failed, and the patient still getting worse, he put in an instrument to see if there was any matter the second time, but there was none. The next day he took a pain in his well leg, and it took two of us to hold him in bed. The doctor told in the country that if he was the last man he must die. Finding all their skill baffled, I determined to have more medical skill, so I started for New Brighton. When I got into Fallston I determined to see Beaver Falls, and whatever possessed me to think about Beaver Falls God only knows, but I drove up to the town, put my horse in Braden’s livery stable, and ordered him to be fed. I then went over to my nephews, and the first word was, “Uncle, how is Will?” I said, “Well, son we are going to lose Will.” He said, “And you are after a doctor, and we have a good one here, but you don’t want him.” He then told me to go down to Brighton and get Dr. Steinfeld, and if he could not cure him then he would have to die. I said, “Where in the world is Dr. Steinfeld?” He told me where I should find him. I introduced myself and told him my business. He said, “What did Scrogs call the disease?” I told him. He said, “I can cure your boy in fourteen days,” and he did so. His plaster wasn’t on over twenty minutes till he had no more pain. Got well right along.

COL. R. WALTON.

CLINTON, PA., July 24, 1875.

I hereby certify that our boy had been afflicted with an eating sore on his leg over six years; that several physicians in the county and from Pittsburgh treated our boy without any favorable result. After every remedy had failed R. Steinfeld’s Magnetic Salve and Drops affected a thorough cure.
